

Topic: Importance of studying Sociology

Ety Rani

Assistant Professor

Sociology discipline

Khulna University

Importance of studying Sociology

- To develop analytical skills and critical thinking ability
- To increase reading, writing, and oral communication skills
- To develop research skills (e.g., literature review, data collection, and data analysis)
- To develop social skills (e.g., communication skills, ability to interact with people from different social backgrounds, cultural competence, and empathy)

Importance of studying Sociology (continue)

- Studying sociology provides a better understanding of the social world
- To know the reasons for social differences, including differences in social behavior.
- To know the role of social institutions.
- To know the role of social structure.
- To develop mutual relationships
- To mitigation conflict and factions
- To determine policy etc.